Follow her on Twitter and Instagram. Don't call it a return; drive-in cinemas have been here for years. Since 1933 must be exact, when Richard Hollingshead stained a sheet and kodak projector on his driveway before he perfected and patented his light bulb moment and opened the original outdoor cinema in Camden, N.J. The concept took off, especially after the Hollingshead patent was revoked in 1949, and audio technology allowed sound to play through the car's radio. In the 50's and 60's heyday there were about 4,000 permanent drive-ins. These days the number is closer to 300, according to DriveInMovie.com, which has a search database that makes it easy to find out who is playing (and where) next to you. Many of them are historical with retro soft drinks, flashback features and original screens suitable for a nostalgic night in movies under the stars. Others were built in the digital decade and cheated distracting, such as mini golf, barbecues and playgrounds to help pass the time before the sun goes down. Some even add concerts, games, and gifts to the program. Given the current need for social distance, a huge desire to leave home and the fact that many people are on Netflix and chilled, the discs again see a surge in popularity, and this list of 18 highlights some of the best theaters in the country for bucket seats, buttered popcorn and big screens. 01 out of 18 If you don't want to go big movie night in Maryland, go home as the 64-year-old Bengies (Middle River) boasts the largest movie theater screen in the states. It measures 52 feet tall 120 feet wide, which means the videos are not cropped to fit on the screen. The mid-river business season is longer than most because they open in early spring and are not closed until late fall. You get more bang for your buck on Fridays and Saturdays as they show triple features and during the all-night dusk pre-dawn programming holiday They are also nostalgia for nine. Each performance begins with the national anthem, the concession stand is original, there are rituals of audience participation, and the spaces are filled with ancient cartoons and trailers. 02 of the 18 Courtesy of Shankweiler's Drive-In Wilson Shankweiler opened the party's second drive-in in Pennsylvania in April 1934. Today, after 86 years, orefield landmark is the oldest still-functioning drive in the country. The cheerful elder must be respected because he took time to change technology, from speakers on poles to digital projections and sound in 2013, and survived hurricane Diane in 1955, which smoothed the projection booth and shadowbox screen. 03 of 18 Coyote Drive-In Theater & Canteen's Texas-sized fun to be had this Fort Worth triple threat, y'all. It's a drive-in with four screens. There is also a concert hall and a beer garden. The dining room pours in more than two dozen brews, including basic sodas (Bud Light and Dos XX) and local crafts (Martin House, Rahr), a handful of ciders, and six wines, all perfectly paired with frito pie or churros. If your whip happens to run literal horsepower, the entrance is free. Hitches are scheduled to tie your steed while you watch from the lawn. 04 out of 18 Courtesy of Silver Bow Drive-In Get Ready for Star-on-Star Action. There are those gracing the silver screen of butte business and those who slowly lit up, filling Montana's loud big sky with a spark. Arrive early to secure a primo parking kiosk and catch a fiery sunset show overhead. Next up to 5 out of 18 below. 05 of the 18 Courtesy Of Delsea Drive-In Theater Even if it wasn't just a theater engine in New Jersey, Delsea's super-sized snack bar is just worth the entrance price. Of course, Vineland drive-in still slings classics like popcorn, hot dogs and raisinets, but the ambitious menu also offers pierogies, spring rolls, eggplant Parmesan, and pull pork sandwiches. There are even plenty of gluten-free, low carb and Atkins options. 06 of the 18 Courtesy Mission Tiki Drive-In Take old school outdoor cinema experience seven days a week in Montclair, California, just 40 miles from Hollywood. It's not just a SoCal drive-in, but it's the only one where guests are welcome to giant Moai as guides and buy tickets from palm thatched huts. It alternates up to eight new releases on four screens, hosts almost daily swap meets, and arranges classic cars and lowrider meet-ups. Others to visit drive-ins across the Golden State include Solano in Concord, Sunset Drive-in in San Luis Obispo, Western Wind in Sacramento, and South Bay Drive-in in San Diego. 07 of the 18 Peter Trapp@Peterbuiltphotography This Fairlee, Vermont, compound offers not only nightlife, but also a place to stay. As one of two drive-in/motel combos in the US (and oldest), you can choose to eat mozzarella sticks and watch a movie car or bed. The motel rooms have rear view windows with views of the screen. Brew something for Keurig coffeemakers to stay awake for the second act. 08 of the 18 Courtesy Harvest Moon Twin Drive-In Go green while going to Gibson City, Illinois movies. Although the entertainment complex began operating in 1954, today the responsible family has implemented a number of eco-friendly initiatives since 1989, when it took over LED lighting, including the installation of LED lighting, the use of recycled materials and about 25 percent of their operations - from funnel pies baking to staging concerts - with energy generated locally by an array of solar and a wind turbine. Next up to 9 out of 18 below. 09 of the 18 Courtesy Of Fort Lauderdale Swap Shop florida favorite offers many ways to have fun 365 days a year, rain or shine. With 14 screens, the world's largest drive-in competitors are any indoor multiplex in terms of capacity and programming. There is also an 88-acre flea market, a arcade and a free Ferrari Museum. 10 out of 18 Get your cinematic strokes on route 66 in this Carthage, Missouri, drive-in along the famous cross-border highway. Given the strong connection with car culture and the Americana that both things represent, the place cannot be more poetic. We also appreciate old-fashioned American sass filtered according to their rules. One example: by detailing the rules on the external food they allow to bring, they casually throw away this embarrassing bon mot: We pay our bills in cash produced on the concession bench. If you bring no food, you contribute to the collapse of drive-in theaters. 11 of the 18 courtesy of Northfield Drive-In 71-year-old Northfield not only shows movies. Sometimes the drive-in that crosses the wall between Massachusetts and New Hampshire stars in them as well. Back in 1998, the Hinsdale Drive-In was used as a three-scene venue for Cider House Rules. The scenes were shot for Halloween. 12 of the 18 Courtesy Admiral Twin Drive-In Tulsa Theater was also ready for its close-up. Francis Ford Coppola arrived in town in the 80's to adapt Outsiders, S.E. Hinton's influential tale of feuding '60s teen gangs set there, with the help of then relative unknowns Rob Lowe, Tom Cruise, Ralph Macchio, Patrick Swayze and Diane Lane. Several scenes take place in a drive-in. Being in the city, have other places, including the Curtis Brothers house, which is now a museum dedicated to romance and film. Next up to 13 out of 18 below. The 13 out of 18 Lagrange, Kentucky, property is known for programming mostly family-friendly classics like the Goonies and Back to the Future, but should get extra thanks to the genius disaster double feature that pairs Wizard of Oz and Twister. (It's an additional meta experience watching a scene where drive-in screening of Shining interrupts a spontaneous wister while his car drive-in.) Sponsorship Retro Wednesday allows you to choose what shows that night and invite 50 car friends for free. 14 of 18 just 23 miles from Portland Newberg, the drive-in has been in the same family since Grandpa Francis built it in 1953. Unlike many of its competitors, the 99W rules allow people to attract non-foos. Could we offer to pick up something from another Oregon institution just on the road? Burgerville is kenter for its burgers and cocktails made from local ingredients like strawberries, blueberries, Rogue Creamery's Hopyard cheddar, Seely Mint, and Portland Coffee Roasters beans. 15 of the 18 two outdoor selection rooms anchored this freedom in Wisconsin, but it also offers customers 18-hole mini golf, basketball courts, volleyball courts, and a soft drinks center that includes homemade pizzas, cheese curds, nachos, and cheddar popcorn. We look forward to no less from the drive-in located in American Dairyland! 16 out of 18 courtesy of Charlotte's Got A Lot in North Carolina and need a night? Head to this converted campsite surrounded by large trees on Kings Hill, near Charlotte. Opened only in 2016, this is one of the newest children in the block. Owner Mike Brown ran a local movie theater in the late '70s and '80s and decided to return to biz with his son Preston after the region's other drive-in closed in 2014. The recent build equates to newer equipment and digital projections. The guardian was once joined by his pig soft serve and cinema, which was good as pets are allowed. We can only hope that they were there to see Babe.
